All About Indian Actresses, Actress Movies Photos Wallpapers Please Note:- The included pictures for each Bollywood Actress are for representative purposes only. Movies & Story I've always been interested in the Indian Actor and have been watching them for a long time. The photo you see was taken on the set of a movie I recently did called "He was your Sister's Boyfriend". Yes she's actually my sister and she was so excited I was making a movie with her. I was nervous as the last movie she was in got really bad reviews and I wanted to avoid that at all costs. The movie was a big flop and finished 18th out of 20 films. It didn't go into theatres anywhere so it never came out. I'm very proud of myself because I'm first and only female director/actor in India. It wasn't easy but I did it. We had everything we needed. We shot at my house, my neighborhood, one of the local park and on location in Pune, India. It was so much fun to work on something different, and I did get along with the majority of the crew and cast. It's funny because even before I had this film, I was thinking of ways to raise money for it. I was looking for a producer who was willing to invest money into a film he wasn't totally confident about. I found that producer and he's going to release my feature film at the end of September on major VOD channels and iTunes. So I've got a little more time to build up the word of mouth to really do the film justice. I'll leave a link below to the website as well. Now back to Indian Actors. I started to dive into researching them to learn what really makes them tick. I believe you'll fall in love with some of these guys (and gals). The incidence rate of infectious diseases per 10,000 habitants of the institutional group was as follows: the overall incidence rate was more than twice higher (183 vs. 86) than that of urban and rural areas. A favorable assessment was recorded for the average incidence rate of selected infectious diseases (the tuberculosis incidence rate was nil and the incidence rate of AIDS was minimal) while more unfavourable was the average incidence rate of communicable diseases in general. This can be explained by a low level of general endemic and epidemic diseases, which had been manifest by the occurrence of serologically ascertained infectious diseases of the respiratory tract, intestinal infections and cutaneous diseases. The overall rate of tuberculosis incidence in the Cernavodă district was 2.6%, of cutaneous diseases 3.8%, of intestinal infections 3.2% and of streptococcal diseases less than 0.1% in the period from 1999 to 2001. Another finding was the absence of epidemic diseases with epidemic potential. The immigrant population was predominantly from the former Soviet Union, the legal residence time was longer than three years and they were employed as seasonal workers in the agricultural sector. It was noticed that the immigrant population was usually illiterate and had limited communication skills. It was also found that the immigrant population did not manifest any special demand for healthcare services. The latter finding was attributed to either the lack of appropriate health educational programmes in the immigrant population or the fact that the health services of the immigrant population were of better quality than those of the host country. The immigrant population had poor access to preventive and
